BETWEEN TURKEY AND PIE, INVITE CONTINUUM GAMES TO THANKSGIVING TABLE FOR CHERISHED FAMILY FUN

Personology™ Family & Personology Party Edition Plus Guess The Macaroni, Pass the Pepper Dinner Games Encourage Lively Conversation Between Courses

Indianapolis, IN (September 6, 2019) – Whether it’s a Friendsgiving or traditional Thanksgiving, you and those you cherish will be seated at an extended table during the last weekend of November. Instead of turning on the football games or daring to talk politics, look to Continuum Games for a buffet of family conversation starters. Holiday hostesses can get everyone interacting, from shy cousins to Great Aunt Edna.

The hilarious Personology™ series of games including Personology Party Edition ($12.99) or Personology Family Fun Edition ($12.99) quickly gets folks mingling, snickering and enjoying each other’s company! Imagine asking Uncle Harold one of the Q & A cards: Which TV show best reflects my current work environment and why? a) Scandal; b) Modern Family; c) Saturday Night Live; d) Empire or e) Parks and Recreation!

Consider Personology as the personal trivia card game that’s all about you, your friends, partners, and those you’d like to know better. Each card is a conversation starter with a twist to boost relationships! These are laugh-out-loud cards FOR humanity!

As Thanksgiving turns to Black Friday shopping, this boxed game makes a perfect present. Wrote one happy Amazon shopper, “I gave this to my 70ish year-old mother as a stocking stuffer for Christmas, and the ten of us ended up playing it as a family activity. Had a blast!”

Wrote another family player, “Do you think you know your relatives? Well I’m here to tell you that you don’t! We had the best time playing this at my sister’s Memorial Day Party. Just when you think you know someone boy, are you wrong. My niece loved it so much she took it with her back to college so the lacrosse team can play while they are road tripping. Would love to be a fly on that bus!”

With whimsical names like Guess The Macaroni and Last Bite, Original Dinner Games ($15.99) is an interactive delight! Picture this scene at your holiday meal – the youngest guest closes his eyes. Everyone else takes one item (fork, napkin, ketchup bottle) off the table and hides it on their lap. Now the youngster opens his eyes and tries to guess what is missing. Chuckles, smiles and memories are made in the moment! Kids will talk about this game for years to come.

Dinner Games are all about bringing the family together at meal time and adding fun and lively conversation to your meals. In today’s on-the-go lifestyle, sitting down with the family at mealtime tends to be the exception rather than the rule. Boost your family bonding time with this collection of 50 games in a tin helps make meal time fun. Dinner games will open kids up to conversation, break the dinnertime routine and even encourage kids to eat their veggies!

Continuum Games' Beginner Dinner Games ($15.99) were designed for the youngest family members from age three and beyond. As the Thanksgiving gathering stretches into hour two and three, keep little ones focused on the family meal with this collection of 51 dinner games to play while you eat!

Beginner Game Rainbow Dinner encourages one relative to start the game by saying a color. Around the table, everyone names all the foods they can think of with that color. For example, "red" could be "apple," "cherry," "radish" and so on.

Look for all these games online at Amazon, at local specialty retailers and at Continuum Games website, www.continuumgames.com.
